

Working in a CDNT - Information Session July 2024

FAQs

Overview

Working with children and their families in the Children's Disability Network Team will enable you to support their development, wellbeing, and participation in family and community life, as well as bringing together groups of children and their parents to learn new skills and share experiences.

The Children's Disability Network follows a Family Centred Practice approach, which involves getting to know the children and their families, finding out their goals, building an individual support plan, and helping them use everyday activities to achieve their goals.

Services are provided by HSE and through funded partnership with organisations including voluntary organisations (Section 38 & Section 39), known as Lead agencies. Websites are available for each of these lead agencies and can be accessed through

Other

Provide links to section 38 and 39 CDNT websites

The HSE provides and funds a range of services for people with disabilities and their carers. These services include basic health services as well as assessment, rehabilitation, income maintenance, community care and residential care respite, home care and day care.

Some services are provided directly by the HSE. Community, residential and rehabilitative training services are provided by voluntary organisations with grant aid from the HSE.

Websites are available for each lead agency and can be accessed directly or links are available through <https://careerhub.hse.ie/hse-childrens-disability-network-teams/>

Are flexible working hours available?

The hours are advertised with the Job. However there are many statutory and non-statutory working arrangements within disability services, for example people have a statutory right to parental leave and the disability service also have non-statutory leave which staff can apply for such as Shorter Working Year leave. Generally the disability services tries to support their staff in achieving a work life balance while still providing the services required by children and their families. If you are interested in working in a CDNT register your interest at career hub and apply for jobs which come up. If you are offered a job or offered a job you can talk about your preferred work pattern with the manager.

Are there challenges in working in a CDNT?

Many staff, including those who presented at the July 2024 webinar and within the videos, describe their work within a CDNT as a fulfilling and rewarding job Demand for services does exceed our current capacity which is challenging for children and their families along with the staff. Building up the number and skillset of staff within Childrens disabilities services is a priority for the Irish government and for the Irish health services. The increase in staff and the development of the skillset working within disability services is complemented by work in other areas. This work includes improving our communication with Children with disabilities and their families and building resources for those children and their families to use while they are waiting for services and engaged in their Individual Family Support Plan (IFSP).
